THE DAY.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

A graphic description of the taking of Trones Wood by the British has been sent by a correspondent of La Liberte at the front. He asys:

"It is a great battle; both obsfinate and bloody. It has lasted for the past three days in Trones Wood, north of Hardecourt."

The correspondent explains the strategical value of the wood on account of its position, and says the Germans were determined to hold it with formidable trenches and considerable forces. He proceeds:

"The importance the enemy attached to Trones Wood can thus be understood. When on Menday morning the British, by a brilliant assault, carried the greater part of the wood the Germans at once launched violent souther-attacks, and attempted to take it back, no matter at what cost. The five first attacks were repulsed with very heavy losses. The sixth, made by a division and a half, managed to push the British soldiers had left the wood, Colonel II—, commanding the regiment of M—, turned to the Germans, and, shaking his ist, cried: "Goodbye for the

The Russians report furious fighting on the Stokhod, where, as previously reported, the enemy has received reinforcements. There has been renewed activity in the Caucasus, where the Russians have made appreciable progress, and captured many prisoners, as well as war munitions. Douglas Haig's report of yesterday after-noon indicates continued fighting in the Trones and Mametz wood, where the Ger-

Friedrichstadt, and attacks south of Taroer Lake, were frustrated.

Stokhod Front—The general situation is unchanged. Russian forces which attempted to gain a footing on the left bank of the river near Janowka were attacked by our (orces, and some of them were able to escape to the south-eastern bank. Here on the Kovel-Royno Railway we captured over 800 prisoners yesterday. During the last two days we have taken a number of officers and twelve machine guns. Our air squadrons made attacks east of Stokhod. An enemy captive balloon was abot down. fight.

Many Germans were killed and wounded.

A hostile cannon was destroyed, several dug-outs crowded with the enemy were successfully bombed, and some prisoners were taken.

Several combats took place in the air on the 10th inst., as the result of which we destroyed one German machine, whilst one of our machines was brought down by the enemy's gun-fire.

REDMOND'S STATEMENT.

Now we have Mr. Redmond's own version of the terms offered by Mr. Lloyd George, writes the Political Correspondent of the Morning Post, and according to this version the Nationalist leader was justified in telling his Ulster Convention that the exclusion of the six counties, like the rest of the modifications to be "strictly temporary and provisional," and not "permanent" or "definite"—the last quoted word being that used by Sir Edward Carson the other night. Apart from the fact that Lord Landovne gave an outline of the policy of the Government as to the interim administration of Ireland which Mr. Asquith though it prudent to withhold from the Commons—a policy which obviously cannot be much to the liking of the Nationalists—Mr. Redmond's party are full of anger at the intimation that the new Home Rule Bill is not in any sense ready for presentation—nay, that it will take "some time to prepare." They imagined that it was all cut and dried, and talked confidently of it being "through" by the beginning of next month. It is unfortunate that they have little or no experience of affairs, or they would be aware that a Government cannot carve up a Constitution as easily as a branch of the United Irish Loague can carry out a cattle-drive. The impression in the Lobby last night was that what Mr. Redmond calls "the negotiations for a settlement" are in considerable jeopardy. It is said in most positive fashion that Mr. Redmond coalls "the negotiations for a settlement" are in considerable jeopardy. WILL LORD LANSDOWNE RESIGN?

The Lobby Correspondent of the Daily News writes—The fear is entertained by Nationalists and others that Lord Lansdowne is staying in the Cabinet in order to try and wreck the Home Rule settlement. It would not be right to assume the accuracy of this suspicion unless Lord Lanadowne confirmed it by a further statement, and it is hoped in political circles that his patriotism will rise superior to his interests as an Irish landlord. Home Rule settlement. It would not be right to assume the accuracy of this suspicion unless Lord Lansdowne confirmed it by a further statement, and it is hoped in political circles that his patriotism will rise superior to his interests as an Irish landlord. In the meantime, Mr. Redmond's clear statement as to the position of the main Home Rule Act is welcomed. Late last night there was a rumour that Lord Langdowne would again tender his resignation, but there is no confirmation.

SETTILEMENT IN PERIL.

Members on all sides realised the gravity of the Irish aituation, says the Parliamentary correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, especially after the emphasic challenge contained in Mr. Redmond's published "statement," and the progress of eventa in the immediate future will be watched with absorbing interest. Meanwhile, the prospect of an early introduction of the Amending Bill is not increasing. The Redmondite manifesto is the urgent question of the moment. It places the proposed Irish settlement in infinite peril, and developments are awaited with considerable anxiety.

of Lord Lansdowne's speech in the strongest possible manner, says the Political correspondent of the Daily Mail. They had intended to sak Mr. Asquith yesterday whether this speech really represented the policy of the Government, and, if the answer had been in the affirmative, they were prepared to declare that the negotiations for a settlement were at an end. Rather than that this question should be asked. Mr. Asquith saw Mr. Redmond and other Nationalist members privately, and reassured them to some extent.

"PROVISIONAL" OR

"PERMANENT"

Mr. Redmond's statement is, says the Pacliamentary Correspondent of the Duily Chranicle, a measure of the dismay arosased by what was decidedly an infelicitous utterance. If the speech had been expressly designed to embarrass the Nationalist Party it could not have been more successful. Among members who favour a settlement of the Irish question, whether Liberals, Conservatives, or Nationaliste, there is a growing conviction that it would be better for the timorous and doubtful Ministers to withdraw from the Cabinet than remaining in it to imperil the success of the whole negotiations by ingrained suspicions and prejudices. The word "provisional" is stamped on the Irish proposals. Lord Lansdowne throw all his emphasis on the suggestion that it would be triable provisional part of the scheme applies only to the Dublin Parliament, whereas the exclusion of the six counties is to be permanent. WORK OF BELFAST BRIGADE.

The following order has been issued to the Belfast Brigade of the Ulster Division:

The Sergadier-General Commanding congratulates all ranks of the Brigade upon the magnificent way they fought on the 1st and 2nd July. The advance on the 1st July was carried out under heavy shell-fire as teatily as if it had been an ordinary field day. The recocupation and consolidation of the line on fold July, organized by Lieutenane-Colonel F. P. Crosier, and led by Major P. J. Woods, was carried out in a manner that reflects the greatest credit on the Brigade.

RELEASE OF PRISONERS.

Mr. SAMUEL, replying to Mr. Byrne in the House of Commons yesterday, said that two of the five Irish lady prisoners arcested owing to the recent rebelina would be released on the recommendation of the Advisory Committee.

Replying to a subsequent question, Mr. SAMUEL said that the Advisory Committee had arrived at the option that a large number of the proposed change of government in Iric William and the proposed change of government in Iric William and the proposed change of government in Iric William and the part were to be engaged in, and thought they were to be engaged in, and thought they were to be engaged in, and thought they were unable or unwilling to go back. Taking these circumstances into account, and the fact that the men had already been in prison three, months: the Committee recommendation would be earied into effect. (Cheers.)

Mr. LOUGH asked what was the total number of the whole number, and about 600, more release. There were a certain number of eases besides the number had about 600, more release. GOODFEAR

ALL-WEATHER TREAD TYRES Any solution of the petrol problem is welcome in these days—2/10 per gallon is a startling figure, and soon will become higher still.

The solution is the Goodyear mileage-record tyre, with its wonderful resiliency and perfect balance.

Resiliency means mileage. We all know the slow, non-resilient, heavy tyre, constructed with an abnormal quantity of canvas to give an appearance of "strength." This kind of tyre means power and petrol, and again power and petrol; but it does not mean mileage. It spells excessive vibration and a terrific strain on the chassis.

Then there is its fellow - the type of tyre in which everything is sacrificed to lightness.

Goodyear has hit the golden mean of lightness and strength; durability and buoyancy.

Behind strength and resiliency there must be rubber: not the shoddy or reclaimed variety, but the genuine product. In the Goodyear tyre is all the life of new rubber.

Unaffected by extremes of temperature, "Good-years" have created mileage records from the Equator to the Arctic

If we wanted to practice incre science, we must have didered that the questions of the duration of Parliament Act, and of registration would be considered by a Committee.

A-bill to free Ministers from the necessity of undergoing re-election on appointment was read a first time, and further progress was made with the Finance Bill.

HOUSE OF LORDS—Wednesday.

The Lord Changellor took his seat on the Woolsack at a quarter past four o'clock. Viscount HALDANE had given notice to call attention to the training of the nation, and to the necessity of preparing for the future. When the noble lord was called upon,

The Duke of BUCCLEUCH, rising from the end bench below the gangway on the Opposition and of the House, said—Before the noble lord in blind alley "occupations. At the age of the prolocked at the present moment.

PRISONERS OF WAR. PRISONERS OF WAR.

Mr. FORSTER, replying to Mr. Gilbert, said that 11,384 combatant prisoners of war, including officers, were interned in this country.

Arrangements were in progress to employ 4,400 of them. A considerable number were employed in camps, making mail bags, and in baking, shoe-making, and talloring. Every opportunity was used to employ prisoners of war, and in such numbers as would prove remunerative.

the noble lord was called upon,
The Duke of BUCCLEUCH, rising from the end bench below the gangway on the Opposition aide of the House, eaid—Before the noble lord directs your lordships attention to foreign policy, I suggest that he should explain his past conduct in misleading Great Britain upon the German danger, and in misleading Germany upon British policy.

Viscount HALDANE—We are met here to discuss foreign policy, and I have only to say, in answer to the question of the noble duke, that nobody more than myself desires that the whole facts should be brought out 2s to what was done before the war, and the preparations that were made. There has been an extra-erdinary stream of misrepresentations, untruthe, inaccuracies, and the sconer these things are brought to the test the better. Nobody desires for the moment to court the most complete judgment of the nation on the full facts more than I do. That is all I have to say to the noble duke. Proceeding to deal with the subject of which he had given notice, Lord Haldane said it did not require any words of his to remind their forships of the momentous and urgent importance of the question. There was suby one preliminary remark he desired to make. We were at this moment engaged in a tremendous struggle, in which our life and freedom were at stake, and we ought all to be jealous of aurthing which could even seem to make the output of the venture and mustle upon the utmost effort that could be made to win victory. The concentrated one regarding is seen and saliors gave the war an aspect, which filled us with hope, and we did not mean in the slightest degree to relax the

MINISTERS AND REELECTION.

Mr. ASQUITH asked leave to introduce a bill to make temporary provision rendering unnecessary the re-election of members of the House of Commons on acceptance of certain offices. He said that the bill was rendered necessary in consequence of an amendment to the Re-election of finisters Bill of 1915, which was accepted by he House during its passage through Committee. The bill, as introduced, exempted from eccessity for re-election all Ministers who accepted office during the life of the present Parament. An amendment introduced confined he operation of the bill to the months of May and June, and in that form it became law the consequences were unforeseen and undesirble. Since our last Assizes. He hoped, however, it would be a tast their only safety and their only protection was in obedience to the law. Since our last Assizes, his lordship added, you must miss from your number Mr. William none here they also to be obligatory on Ministers of the Crown, on their appointment, to go through the farce of an election. It was far more important that they should be attending to their dutiesain relation to the war than that they should waste time in going through the form of an election. The position of the Attorney-General was a painful one, because he ought to have known the law. (Laughter).

Leave having been given, the bill was brought in by Mr. Asoulth, and a considerable and the county had not overything connected with its welfare. A SPECIAL PROPOSITION. Dunlop: How are those foreign wans of yours doing?

Managing Director: Pretty fair. Anyway the Coverament took all our horses, and British chassis were not to be bad, so I suppose one mustn't gramble, but the tyres are nearly worn out.

Dunlop: That's where I can help you, I think. I make excess in all the principal sizes, whether for British or imported cars, and, secondly, I am putting forward a special proposition to all owners of commercial vehicles exclusively used for the conveyance of goods.

Managing Director: That's interesting.

Dunlop: Yes. Drop a line to the nearest motor car dealer or garage proprietor, or, better still, goand see him, he'll tell you all about it. I must be off! So glad to have seen you! Good-bye.

For the Children's Hair

Children's hair needs careful handling. Common shampoos may easily harm it. But Icilma Shampoo Sachets keep it fine and soft and bright.

They make "shampoo night" a pleasure instead of an anxiety. The little ones' hair is clean and dry again so much sooner—there is not the same risk of a chill from damp curls. Icilma Shampoo Sachets are the only wet shampoos that help the hair to grow. Use them for your own hair as well as for the children. They make a delightful lather, need but little rinsing and enable you to "do up" your hair again almost at once.
